ESSA designates 2016-2017 as a transition year, during which the U.S. Department of Education develops final regulations and states create implementation plans. The new law and the provisions of each state's plan to implement ESSA go into effect during the 2017-2018 school year.

Under Virginia's revised ESEA accountability system: 1) Annual Measurable Objectives (AMOs) that require a 95 participation rate and academic progress over time in reading and mathematics will be established for all students, three proficiency gap groups, and individual subgroups; and 2) schools with a graduating class will be expected to meet the Federal Graduation Index.

*MHE = One or more subgroups were expected to meet higher expectations, either Maintain Progress (MP) or Continuous Improvement (CI), but failed to do so.
